

SocialPrice, the app that will tell you what you are worth.

Do you know what you're worth?
SocialPrice discovers how valuable you are.

A new application available on Android and IOS that calculates how much you contribute to society and how much you are worth as a human being.

SocialPrice is the only application able to calculate your influence on society.

Do you think you are worth less than a football player or an important executive?

Do you know how much you are worth to society? Would you like to know how much you are worth to your neighbor, cousin or boss? There are athletes, actors or artists that are worth millions but, how much is a human being actually worth? Besides the biological component, there are many parameters that assess the value of an individual and show what you add to the society in which you live. Now there is a new application available on IOS and Android: SocialPrice which is able to calculate your value. To do so, it uses a complex algorithm based on economic and social indexes, plus a series of human aspects and their interactions in the society in which they live.

As opposed to other applications that only value your influence on social networks, SocialPrice includes aspects that determine your precise value and influence on society. Furthermore, SocialPrice interprets your results and gives you advice on how to improve.

This application measures personal and social aspects of the individual and also allows the person to compare himself/herself with others by allowing them to share their results online. SocialPrice has a ranking value by country which allows a social analysis that crosses borders. In fact, the application has already been translated into seven languages to give it a greater international coverage.

SocialPrice takes into consideration where you live, your personality, how you take care of yourself, how you value your body, what your social surroundings are like and your education to establish the your value. The value is represented in dollars or pounds which shows the value that each person adds to society. The findings are extremely surprising! To find out, you only have to download the application at <http://socialpriceapp.com>

E-mail: info@socialpriceapp.com

Picture Gallery.

